

Sue headhunted for role

NATIONWIDE career placement and business start-up specialist New Career Search has expanded its Southampton-based team by adding a business development manager.

Sue Edmundson had been working for Bournemouth and Poole College as a senior training co-ordinator.

She was approached for the newly created post at New Career Search by MD Tim Adderson when he heard of the good work she had been doing in Bournemouth.

Sue's role will include developing opportunities for mature career changers to train as plumbers and electricians with firms throughout the south.

Sue said: "Having met Tim and visited the centre for a day to get a feel about the type of courses delivered, I could see the challenge and benefits this job could offer me. I knew two people already working at New Career Search and they sang such praise for the team that it was an offer I couldn't refuse."

Tim Adderson said: "I am excited at the prospect of developing New Career Search and moving forward in the future. I see Sue as being an instrumental part of the team in doing that."
